Snow fell in New England on the 24th inst.

The cases of Moxley vs. Anderson and same vs. Hurst, from Fleming county, have been reversed by the Court of Appeals.

LEXINGTON turfmen claim that the proposition to secure legislation that will limit pool-selling is made in the interest of the Louisville races.

FIFTEEN hundred people lost their lives during the recent massacre at Port-au-Prince, and $4,000,000 worth of property destroyed. Order has now been restored.

ATTORNEY GENERAL HORD, of Indiana, has ruled that the Judges can be paid their salaries, notwithstanding the failure of the Legislature to make an appropriation for that purpose. He takes the ground that there is a continuing, as distinguished from an annual, appropriation for that purpose.

THE Louisville Democrat says: Kentucky's murder record is not waning. In 1880 there were fifty murders in the State; in 1882 there were ninety six, and up to August 15 there had been one hundred and nine in 1883. Gov. Knott's cold-blooded determination to issue no pardons will probably have a wholesome effect upon the murderers.

THE Turf, Field and Farm, in commenting on the recent meeting of the Kentucky Horse Breeders' Association at Lexington, says: "The financial results of the meeting were poor. The trouble was that no attempt had been made to arouse public enthusiasm. You cannot bring out the crowd unless you make liberal use of printer's ink."

THE demand for bibles and testaments is steadily on the increase, and it is reasonable to suppose that the world is growing proportionately better. During the last three months the American Bible Society have been unable to fill the orders received, although it publishes seven complete bibles and testaments every minute of working time. The demand is a gratifying one to those engaged in the good work.

PENSION COMMISSIONER DUDLEY in speaking of pension agents in his annual report says: "The construction which has heretofore been placed upon the act of June 20, 1878, by which agents claim and exact generally their fee in advance, has, I think, operated to practically exclude from the practice many educated and useful attorneys, and has attracted to it many ignorant, unscrupulous and useless persons, whose only object seems to be first to procure applications from soldiers, regardless of merit, to be filed through them and then while acting simply as transmitters of the papers, assiduously dun the claimant until the $10 fee is secured and thereafter practically abandon the case like a squeezed orange."

ALLERTON, the Chicago cattle dealer, denies that there is pleuro-pneumonia among cattle in the United States. He says: "They have been locking up cattle in native yards or fields formerly occupied by tick-covered Texas steers. When the Texas cattle are shipped to the east many of them are covered with little nests of 'ticks,' or bugs, and these insects fall off to the ground and crawl over the grass. If the herds are changed as they usually are, it often happens that the native cattle get into the Texas pastures. The native cattle eat the grass covered with these poisonous green ticks and in a short time get sick and show symptoms of what is termed pleuro-pneumonia. But it is not pleuro-pneumonia. It is easily cured. Give a steer a lot of green corn, and see how quickly this dreadful thing they talk about will disappear."

General Crook, the Indian fighter, is said to be very abstemious, not drinking any kind of alcoholic liquor, tea or coffee. His favorite beverage is fresh milk. In dress his taste is equally plain, but he is not in the slightest degree slovenly.

What a Boy's Intestines Contained. An autopsy was held on the body of a boy named Elmore Beach, aged about ten and a half years, in Washington, on Thursday night. He had a remarkable swelling in the abdomen, which the physicians could not account for until after death, when it was discovered that there was an obstruction in the bowels. "Another remarkable fact is that his intestines were immediately enlarged. There were taken from them twenty-nine large seeds of damsons, a copper cent, a nickel, a tooth, two buttons, and other indigestible articles. His liver was swelled to such a size that it took the place of the lungs and nearly everything else, and one of his kidneys was greatly displaced."

Personal Remarks.

General McClellan and family will winter at Washington.

Wilkie Collins is down with the gout, which affects one of his eyes.

Pere Hyacinthe's stepson is a clerk in the Treasury department at Washington.

Ex-Secretary Blaine has rented the Marcy mansion, Lafayette square, Washington, and will spend the winter on his book.

John C. New tells a Detroit reporter: "I am now holding the last political office I ever intend to hold. I am heartily sick of public life, in which I have been engaged more or less for many years. I have worked for the public too long. I must now work for myself and family."

La teone winter night a reporter went from the office of the Missouri Republican (St. Louis) to show Mr. George Knapp, owner of that paper, who died a few days ago, proofs of an important editorial. While Mr. Knapp was reading the proofs the fire bell struck 47, denoting the corner on which the Republican office stood. "Was that alarm 47?" asked Mr. Knapp, looking up. "Yes, sir," "Well,"—slowly and with a drawl—"when you get back to the office, if you find it on fire, please let me know." Then he went on reading the proofs slowly, for at least twenty minutes, handed them to the reporter, repeated "Please don't forget about the fire," and went up stairs to bed. Fortunately, the fire was not in the Republican building.

Writing to prove that Thaddeus Stevens was not the unbeliever in religion he has been represented, a correspondent of the Philadelphia Times relates that once when the Pennsylvania Bible Society was exploring the State and supplying destitute families with bibles, he met Mr. Stevens on the street in Gettysburg. "Young man," said the "great Commoner," "you are a student?" "Yes, sir," "Well, what are you going to do during vacation?" "I don't know, perhaps, will visit York, my old home." "Would you like to have a job whereby you could earn something?" "Yes, certainly." "Well, I have a job for you." "What is it?" "Why, the bible society has resolved to have this county visited, and have all the destitute families supplied with bibles, and I have promised to have one township explored and supplied, and if you will undertake it I will furnish you a horse and pay you $1 a day." "Well," I replied, "I will." "So in a day or two," says the writer, "I got Stevens' horse and borrowed a pair of saddle-bags and started out on my mission. When I was about start Stevens gave me $5 as a donation to begin with. I explored the township west of the college and Stevens footed the bill."

An elastic step, buoyant spirits, and clear complexions, are among the many desirable results of pure blood. The possessor of healthy blood has his faculties at command, and enjoys a clear and quick perception, which is impossible when the blood is heavy and sluggish with impurities. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier and vitalizer known.
